Vermillion, Dale. Navigating the Mortgage Maze: The Simple Truth About Financing your Home. Chicago: Northfield Publishing, 2009. 236 pp. $12.99. Purchase at Amazon.com.

Buying a house can be an exhilarating yet frightening experience. The idea of purchasing a house that, in many cases, you may be paying on for the rest of your life can be both of these and more. The old adage of ignorance being bliss certainly does not apply to the purchase of a home. Dale Vermillion, a twenty-five year mortgage veteran, offers an easily read book on how to better understand the greatest investment you are going to make; i.e., your home.

He begins the book with a chapter discussing the ten biggest mortgage traps that consumers fall into and how to avoid them. Each chapter that follows equips the reader to tackle the monster of the mortgage. Chapters like understanding the interest rate in addition to the length of your mortgage or how to find hidden cash in your home. He offers tips on how to apply for a mortgage as well as a chapter on what to do if you do not qualify for a loan.

Written with the biblical principle of stewardship in mind and by a man who has trained over 250,000 mortgage professionals and has consulted with over 140 mortgage companies, Navigating the Mortgage Maze is an excellent starting place for anyone looking to purchase a home.
